

WASHCLOTH GIFT IDEA

Items you will need: washcloths, ribbon, paper, your business cards, computer printer, craft blade, and scissors.

1) Print out the “washcloth message” on your choice of color paper. You will be able to print four per sheet. I personally like pale pink card stock but regular paper works just as well and is cheaper.

2) Cut the paper in four to separate each message.

3) Using a hole-punch make 2 holes at the top center of each. Make the holes about an inch from each other. Be careful not to make the holes too close to the top because they tend to tear once the ribbon is through them.

4) You will need to use a business card as your template for where you will attach your card to the note. To make the template, cut the corner off at an angle on the top left and bottom right side of the business card.

5) Now position the template on the message card. Using any type of craft blade, make a cut along the two angled corners. This will make the slits you will need to insert your business card. Two slits are all you need to hold your card in place. You may be able to cut a few at a time depending on the thickness of the paper you use. Be sure to use a cutting mat to protect your work surface. You could use something like a telephone book if you don't have a cutting mat.

(You want your card to be removable so they can keep it handy.)

6) Slip your business card into each message by putting the top left and bottom right corner of it into the slits you cut.

7) Cut ribbon pieces approximately 8 inches long. Fabric ribbon looks the best but curling ribbon is also fine to use. I like using pink, darker or lighter than the paper. (You can get a spool of 10 yards of ribbon for about 50 cents at any craft store or even Wal-Mart.)

8) Fold the washcloth in three, long way with the decorative pattern at the top and bottom. Preferably white, a nice clean color.

(I found the best quality washcloths at Wal-Mart, a pack of 18 for $4.00.)

9) Wrap the ribbon around the washcloth about a third of the way down from the top. Thread one end through the back of one hole on the note and the other end through the back of the second hole. Now tie the two together to make a cute little bow.
